

MAINE GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

MAINE TOWNS WITH VITAL RECORDS

Most original town vital records are now available to view free on the FamilySearch.org website. One must sign in to be able to view the images. Once signed in, bring up the drop-down menu “search”, select “catalog” and enter the name of the town you are searching for. The following listing shows towns and counties in Maine, most of which have been filmed and are now available on their website. A few were filmed but are not yet available to view on their website while others were never filmed. Those not filmed or unavailable online may be for records after 1896 or may have been lost due to fire or other damage to the original records. A few of these towns have original volumes of records which may be found in digitized format on the digitalmaine.com website. In the column entitled “Records Available”, I have indicated the years which were filmed by LDS and whether available online or not. Some records have been published and that information, when known, has been indicated in the appropriate columns. The published records may be available in many larger libraries. If a town’s records are known have been published in their entirety, no information has been given regarding film availability.
